Key takeaways

1. EUDR objectives remain, but implementation requirements have changed

   The December 2025 amendments introduced revised application dates, simplified obligations and adjustments to product scope. Companies should review their responsibilities according to their size, supply chain role and products. The European Commission provides practical implementation resources, including FAQs, guidance, country benchmarking, the EUDR Information System and new repositories under development.

2. PEFC certification provides independently verified information and controls to support EUDR due diligence

   PEFC's independently verified Sustainable Forest Management and Chain of Custody systems support responsible sourcing, traceability and risk assessment. Certification provides valuable evidence to support due diligence, while helping companies demonstrate sustainability beyond minimum legal requirements.

3. PEFC's updated EUDR Due Diligence System (DDS) module helps companies put requirements into practice

   Aligned with the latest EUDR amendments, the voluntary module builds on existing PEFC Chain of Custody processes to support information gathering, risk assessment, risk mitigation and information sharing. It covers wood and rubber, including certified and non-certified material.

4. PEFC connects EUDR-related information and verification across the supply chain

   From EUDR-aligned forest management requirements to independently audited Chain of Custody systems, PEFC helps companies manage sourcing risks, strengthen traceability and communicate relevant information through PEFC-EUDR claims. Digital solutions can further facilitate secure and efficient information exchange.

5. PEFC and CommonShare are exploring the next generation of connected supply chains

   A new pilot programme will bring together certification data, product and transaction information, and supporting evidence. Suppliers, retailers and brands are invited to participate and help shape practical digital solutions for traceability and due diligence.
